Woolen in Place of Cotton.

theory respecting clothing, which is creating quite a sensation in fatherland.

He objects to garments made of linen or cotton, and gives many reasons why wool

Wool is the natural covering of ani mals. It rids their bodies of effete and weather.

poisonous emanations, and protects

But cotton and linen are composed of vegetable fibre. They are |dead materials, and retain the noxious emanations

from our bodies, thus slowly poisoning us. Silk is not so objectionable, as it is a product of an animal life, because spun from the body of an animal. But it is far less wholesome, especially when worn next the skin, than wool or the demands the exclusion of cotton and linen from the materials out of which we

The Lost Rivers of Idaho.

[Golden Days.]

One of the most singular features in the scenery of the territory of Idaho is the occurance of dark, rocky chasms, empty, while the roof of the lava duct,

having at some point fallen in, presents

there the opening into which the river

At one place along the Snake one of Politeness in Public.

volves the prompt perception of the spirit and purpose answer.

good conduct.

easily broken.

What is politeness in public? It in-

These are apt to be evident in the essence of true politeness will appear.

But selfishness, that seeks only personal enjoyment, at the expense of all others, is the essence of impoliteness. There polished as to outward manner who are.

swer for that regard for the comfort of Three Chains.

There are three chains which bind

These different forces play into each other's hands. First custom comes with its insinuations and solicitations; then follows habit with its bands and fetters;

energies, sweeping the soul as with a cyclone, and hurrying a man to irretriev-

The time to snap these chains is at the

Let those hate bondage remember that tyranny in its beginning is insidious and unsuspected, and that those who fail to Wished She Was an Orphan.

age, carefully nursed and richly clothed many childish voices in the yard where

"They are poor little orphans, without any parents," impressively answered the

"Oh, mamma," exclaimed the child crossing her little hands over her velvet gown and drawing a deep sigh, "how I and has since given her child companion-freedom from fine clothes and constant

Running Trains.

Among the most valuable experiments made recently with a view to ascertain and at a very low rate of speed, those up.

on the Pennsylvania road, near Phila-

According to the published account, the same conditions, same number of cars, and similar engines were employed, and the train in each case went the same distance-119 miles out and back, with some stops. The fast train ran on schedule express time, and consumed 6,725

twelve miles an hour, and consumed

Outside the Human Family.

[Home Journal.]

The mother appreciated the situation,

"Oh, mamma, what is that?"

mother, hugging her darling closer.

wish I was a poor little orphan!

nursing.

pounds.

A little Newport ehild of rich parant-beginning. A three-fold cord is no men in captivity-custom, habit and appear in public life many who are

These are some of the reasons why he hair of one of the lower animals.

make our clothing.

plunges and is lost.

A German professor has started a

BESIDE THE BARS.

- Grandmother's knitting has lost its charm; Unheeded it lies in her ample lap, While the sunset's crimson, soft and warm, Touches the frills of her snowy cap.
- She is gazing on two beside the bars,
 Under the maple—who little care
 For the growing dusk, or the rising stars,
 Or the hint of frost in the autumn air.
- One is a slender slip of a girl And one a man in the pride of youth— The maiden pure as the purest pear!, The lover strong in his steadfast truth.
- "Sweet, my own, as a rose of June," He says full low o'er the golden head.

 It would sound to her like a dear old tune,

 Could grandmother hear the soft words said.
- For it seems but a little while ago
 Since under the maple, beside the bars,
 She stood a girl, while the sunset's glow
 Melted away 'mid the evening stars.
- And little you dream how fond a prayer Goes up to God through His silver stars, From the aged woman gazing there, For the two who linger beside the bars. - Margaret Sangster.

HOW TO SELECT CLOTHING. A Tailor's Advice as to How to De teet Cotton Warp and Shoddy in Cloths.

[New York Sun.] "The stuff in this suit of black clothes you made for me is not what I took it for," said one of an up-town tailor's customers to him the other day in a reporter's hearing. "I have just had them cleaned, and now see how they have whitened at the edge."

"That's because of the cotton warp in the material, which the scouring soon makes apparent," replied the tailor, genially.

"But you assured me particularly that the material wasn't shoddy."

"So I did, and I told you the truth. But at the same time I told you that it was cheap American goods, and that is just what it is-a well-appearing American woollen manufacture, with a large percentage of cotton warp. If you had wanted a shoddy, I could have sent you where you'd have got something cheap- repeat my warning, young man. In asked: er, for shoddy is a kind of goods I wont make up for love or money. But, if you will remember, I showed you much better but more expensive goods of both foreign and American manufacture, which I offered to recommend heartily enough. But you were bent upon having the poorer but well-appearing goods, and so consulted your own wishes instead of my advice."

The customer seemed to have nothing to offer against these statements, and presently took his departure, apparently much dissatisfied with himself, if not with the tailor.

"How," asked the reporter, "is an inexperienced buyer to distinguish be tween all-woollen goods and the material containing a cotton warp, of which that gentleman was complaining?"

"By merely ravelling out the rough edge of the material and inspecting the threads," said the tailor. "Anyone can tell a cotton thread from a woollen thread. The one will break short in two, on being tested, while the other will fray and floss out, like yarn and worsted. In this way you can readily detect a mixture of cotton warp in a sham all-woollen fabric."

"How do you detect shoddy in cloth?" "In the same way, and even more easily. Fray out two or three threads from the rough edge, and untwist them. If they contain shoddy, it will drop out of the twist, sometimes like sand, and then again in an impalpable dust, that will like enough make you sneeze. If you'd inhale enough of the stuff it would be apt to give you both a headache and a sore throat, for most shoddy is rank poison. Ever in a shoddy factory?" "Well, I was, and I know something about it. Fact is, I worked in a shoddy factory just one week when I was a much younger and more necessitous person than I am now. Necessitous? Well. should say so, for nothing short of starvation could have driven me to seek employment in that poison mill. Talk about quick silver mining and that sort of thing for turning live workers into galvanized corpses! Why, such emcloyment is positively invigorating compared with a shoddy mill! I stood it just one week, and was then laid up for six months. Lucky I switched off when I did, or I'd have been atrophied into kingdom come long ago. Even as it was

it was a close shave. "How is shoddy made?" twelve or fifteen years ago, when I served my week's apprenticeship at it. They may have made improvements in the milling since then, though, of course, the product itself is just the same mean, windling, poisonous stuff it always was. I was placed over a sort of machine something like a patent straw-cutter, only, in lieu of straw, you fed it with cloth scraps, remnauts, clippings and rags. These passed through the teeth of the machine on to revolving knives, just as in a straw-cutter, which minced them up pretty fine. After that they passed than to own. Some people put away through another and yet another ma- their light fancy china on such occasions chine, getting minced finer and finer at | because it is too expensive to have brokeach operation, until the stuff was re- en and is hard to replace. Others don't they steer to the fence.' They are well duced to a coarse powder. This powder | have it. was then bolted, and the fine powder or | What we hire is nice china, but it is dust that passed through the last seive was the beautiful stuff called shoddy, or | kind, and when we do it is never the flock. Then came the drying process, same set twice. Now, you go to A's toand the dirty job was complete. I never | night; you see a set of chins with pecugot any farther than feeder to the pri- liar Japanese figures on it. You go to B's in the evening with a silk circular. I mary machine. Although I kept a wet next evening; more Japanese figures. supposed it fine goods, and she so represponge tied constantly over my mouth Again, C's chocolate is served in Japan- sented the circular, but next morning I and nostrils, the work was almost too ese. All the rage! Ah! Japanese figures found that it was entirely worthless. She much for me even at the end of the first | are just the thing in china now. You afterward came in with a silk dress. I day. Why, once an hour I would | mention it to Mrs. Beenthere. She draws | told her to call in daylight. She saw squeeze out that sponge muzzler, and up to one side, puts her fingers to her that I knew her, and, very much emisher.

a rocket, where I was sick abed a long time afterward! "How did the other operatives stand it so much better than you?"

if I had stolen it, and slid for home like

"How is the shoddy mixed with the of the woof. Young man, beware her home.

of shoddy, whose presence in cloth you can always detect in the manner I have told you.' "But in ready-made clothing?" "There you have no means of detecting it, save by wearing the goods. You have to trust to the honesty of the firm of whom you purchase. Though I don't deal in ready-made goods myself, it is no more than just for me to say that many firms that deal in nothing else are perfeetly honest and trustworthy, and whose guaranty of what they warrant is very careful, in choosing goods, whether made up or not, to know that the material has been properly fulled. Without a perfect course of fulling woollen cloth will always shrink upon becoming damp."

"What is the exact meaning of full-

"Fulling is the last, or finishing, process through which cloth passes, should pass, before it is ready for the weaver's use. It is a process by which cloth is scoured, cleansed, and thickened. It consists of a series of pestles, or stampers, which alternately fall into and rise out of the trough, through which the cloth is being passed, along with fuller's earth or some other cleansing material. This process, besides ridding the cloth of the grease and oil used in preparing wool, prevents its shrinking thereafter on coming in contact with the wet. You often see trousers, for instance, that looked large enough, and even overlarge, when first put on, but which, nevertheless, shrink up too small, or all out of shape, after encountering a single hour of wet weather. That is because the material was not thoroughly fulled. In selecting clothing material always make sure that it has been properly fulled." "But how can an inexperienced person tell whether it has been properly fulled "He can't. There is no way by which he can. His only safeguard in this respect is to take his tailor's word for it. Hence, how important it is for every selecting clothing material, beware of shoddy and put your faith in an honest

Home, Sweet Home.

[Letter in Detroit Free Press.] In a late issue of the Free Press it i stated that "Payne is said to have stolen the music of 'Home, Sweet Home.' " Regarding this statement I am unable either to affirm or contradict it. Payne was born in the year 1792 and died in

The song in question originally appeared in an opera in London, about the year 1820. In the year 1832 if was estimated that upwards of 100,000 copies of it had been sold. In the Gentleman's Magazine for the year 1796, now before me, I transcribe the following lyric, and it is there stated that they are sung to the air "Dulce Domum," which air was composed by John Reading, in the reign of

Let us all, my blythe companions Join in mirthful, mirthful glee, Pleasant our subject, Sweet, oh! sweet our object Home, sweet home, we soon shall see,

How the seat of joy and pleasure, Home, sweet home, inspires our lay; Welcome freedom! welcome leisure! Every care be far away! Home, sweet home, etc.

Now the swallow, bird of summer, Seeks again her long-left home; See her nest preparing, We, my boys, shall share in The dear delights of home, sweet home. Home, sweet home, etc.

Swift as thought, ye generous coursers Bear us to the wished-for end! To the fond caresses, The tender embraces Of each loved and loving friend.

Contagious Drunkenness. Dr. T. D. Crothers has made the im portant discovery that drunkenness is contagious disease. The theory that drunkenness is contagious is not in conflict with any well-established facts, and has much positive evidence to sustain it The microbe that, when taken into the body, creates a thirst for alcohol can, according to Dr. Crothers, be conveyed from one person to another by concact. The man who shakes hands with a drunkard is liable to catch the disease, and it is even probable that it can be conveyed by means of clothing. We can now understand why so many temperance lecturers, after being entirely cured of drunkenness, have fallen victims to renewed attacks of the disease.

The truth is that they have mingled so closely with drunkards in efforts to cure them that they have caught drunkenness a second or third time. Susceptibility to the disease is not, as in the case of smallpox or whopping cough, destroved by a single attack. We must depend, therefore, for the extirpation of drunkenness upon finding a remedy for from the express office.

Hired Out China.

[N. Y. Mail.] There is hardly a reception given in Washington where there is not hired china on the table. It's cheaper to hire plain white. We seldom hire any other | you? blacker than your hat, and smell worse to your ear: "Hired!" Now, you see, of the week I pocketed my $6 wages as must be white, plain white.

Russel Sage's Sister-in-law.

[Lansingburgh Courier.] An aged woman, found lying in the mud on the Schaghticoke turnpike, lome of them didn't, while those that about a mile north of the village, by did had cast-iron throats and lungs like Humphrey Lee, a milkman, was brought bellows, I suppose. Some men can stand to the station house by William Derrick, of Adamsville, the other day. The the souvenirs gathered by fathers and woman was partially deranged and pre-"It is simply twisted up with the warp bruised and bleeding and her hands and bring." before the weaving. This gives fictitious clothing being covered with mud. She weight and durability to a fabric whose stated that her name was Mrs. William native flimsiness would otherwise betray | Sage, of Trov, and that she was a sisterits worthlessness. As it is, it takes a in-law of Russell Sage, the New York very little wear and tear to dust out the | millionaire. Her statement proved cor-

THREE GOLDEN BALLS.

of the Interesting Experiences of a City Pawnbroker.

There are but few vocations in which men are engaged on this planet, says the Toledo Blade, that give a wider scope for the study of human character in all so much pride that they would almost should be the sole clothing of human beits phases than does that of pawnbroking. The pawnbroker has full scope to become acquainted with the characteristics of men and women physically and as good as gold. Only, in addition to mentally, wickedness and follies, the the precautions I have given you, be pains and staggering sorrows of the good and bad. They daily pass in review before him, and in time he reads people as if they were an open book. He has to deal with all classes, from the sleek, impudent, brazen-faced, well-dressed and well-fed workers of pawn-shops, through the scale of humanity to the needy, distressed unfortunate whom illness has brought to the verge of grimvisaged want-and the needlewomen with pinched cheeks, so re hearts and distressed minds, come to lay treasures of dear ones upon the counter as a last resort to keep the wolf-hunger away from their weak bodies. Women who Work, work, work, Till the brain begins to swim; Work, work, work, Till the eyes are heavy and dim: seam and gusset and band, Band and gusset and seam. Till over the buttons they fall asleep,

And sew them on in a dream. But the man that displays the three golden balls soon becomes an adept in distinguishing between those who study to entrap him and the really honest and

On his rounds of duty a Blade reporter article of it-I began in this way: concluded to see what the latent, what the convert yield among the men of Toledo, who are now, or have been engaged as pawnbrokers. Stepping into a respectable establishment on Summit street, he was soon in pleasant conversation with man to have an honest tailor! Let me the proprietor. The pawnbroker was

"Oh' yes," was the reply. "I meet with ments. Human character may be compared to the notes on a flute. There are sharps, flats and naturals, and those that touch the heart with their charm and

"Well, yes, for instance, let me show you one;" and, reaching under the counter, he handed out a wooden-leg, painted so as to give it a flesh-colored

"You do not have calls for such ghast-

y looking property?"
"Yes, indeed; there have been a dozen people after it. The fact is that a wooden leg must be properly adjusted-fit neatly or it is of no value. This man who owned this leg outgrew it. I have gone to the doctor's with several people who wanted it, but he could not get it to fit them and they felt extremely sorry. Its original cost was about $75.

"I suppose people come to you some times with false teeth and other cheerful looking objects to pawn?" inquired the

The pawnbroker laughed and replied. Yes, I believe that almost everything that goes to supply the necessities and fancies of people are brought in. When people get into straitened circumstances they do not hesitate to part with articles of usefulness as well as beauty. Some have an ungovernable desire to sell articles of novelty to purchase others, while there is a class that will have enjoyment if they have to sell things they really need. Why, last summer several persons who seemed to be hard pushed came here and pawned a variety of goods. The same day I started for Put-in bay on the steamer Waite, and to my surprise I saw the same parties having a gay old time on the boat. One individual had secured a state-room and was enjoying himself in a right royal manner. When they came to my store they complained bitterly of the hard times."

"Who are your best customers?" "Considering numbers, commercial travellers. They carry the best jewelry and perambulate the avenue in real diamonds. They reach the city, get in with a good set of fellows, and when they wake up in the morning they have no ducats. They have a stipulated sum for expenses from the house they represent and, as they do not like to write for money, they come to me. They com-

They then order the goods sent C. O. D. at some stated period in the future, and they never fail to take them promptly

"Do thieves offer you many goods?" "Very seldom. They have pretty much quit going to regular pawnbrokers. When I first went into business I had some difficulty in determining who were thieves, but I soon got on to them. Thieves generally go to a place known as 'fence'-a place to be found in every city where stolen goods are received, and when thieves enter the city with goods posted as to these places." "Do people in the city try to beat

"Certainly, and they are not always poorly dressed. An elegant looking woman a while ago came into my store the water that came from it would be lips in a sly fashion, and whispers close barrassed, she left the store. I see her almost every day sailing along Summit than any ragpicker's sack. At the end | that won't do; if they are all alike they street with an air calculated to paralyze poorly dressed people.

"You meet with mean men some times?" "Yes, but some of the meanest kind are those that are left sums of money in addition to curiosities, the latter to be handed down from one generation to another by relatives. They will pocket the Bereavement, criticism and censure money, and have the trunks containing mothers hauled off to the pawnbroker's and too short for men and women to and sell the contents for what they will reach their full development.

"A pawnshop is a good thing some times for people to hide their poverty and preserve their pride."

"That is so. Many people who keep up a respectable appearance in the city ddy, and expose the general wretch- rect, and her friends, being notified, took have no means to run to if misfortune overtakes them. If they get sick they | fraud.

seek the pawnbroksr and pledge articles of value to tide over their pinch. If death enters the household, instead of going openly and asking a loan from friends, they will pawn almost anything to pay the funeral expenses, thus hiding their real condition. Many people have

In a conversation with a pawnbroker reporter remarked:

friends in the circle in which they sooner starve than ask assistance from ings.

"Your experience must have been in 'Yes; a pawnbroker sees the most ludricrous as well as the most serious things. I remember a gay-looking individual that entered my shop once. He came in swinging a small rattan cane, and disported himself with a fine silk hat. I thought from his appearance that he could buy out my whole cancern. But he nearly took my breath away when he asked if I had any cheap shirts. showed him some. He paid me twenty cents for one, and took off his coat to put it on. I was amazed when he threw his coat on the counter. Will you believe me when I tell you that he hadn't sufficient seating material in his pantaloons to wad a shot-gun? The only sign of a shirt on him was a paper shirt-breast that was fastened at the lower end by a piece of string. When he was ready to into which creeks and large streams go he donned his fancy dice, gave a suddenly disappear and are never more

A Discouraged Journalist.

Last night I was assigned to report a fire over on the west side, and I wrote it up in grand style, made a half-column graceful bow, said 'good day,' and seen moved out twirling his dandy little

"Suddenly on the still night air rang the shrill cry of fire, and at the same moment the little licking tongue of flame whose light played along the roof's edge had caught the eve of the midnight watcher, leaped forth, no longer playful, point it is swallowed up, is absolutely but fierce and angry in its thirst and greed. Like glowing, snaky demons the its sources are a long way up in the North lurid links entwined the doomed build- country. "You have to deal with all kinds of ing; in venomous hisses and spurts the flames shot into the overhanging darkness, while from every window and door poured forth a dense sulphurous smoke, people of all descriptions and tempera- the deadly sufocating breath of an im- rights and comforts of others, and the

"I went on in that style for over half a column," said the reporter, "and this is what showed up in the paper this morning: 'Pat Sheeny's grocery was "You at times receive queer as well as destroyed by fire last night. $240; un

The Land of Make-Believe. [American Home.]

Wonderful are the imaginations childhood, and infinite are thy resources, O, land of Make-Believe!

From the portals of this delightful at the same time, at variance with all kindom the child emerges into the land the rules of good conduct. A stately bow, a polished expression, do not anof the purely ideal, the enchanted realm others which is the material element in

Its joys are more intoxicating, in their seeming fullness of perfection, when viewed though the intervening distance, but, whenever the traveler wanders, the genii, that people the realm, whisper of pleasures more attractive, beauties more rare, and splendors more dazzling that lie appetite. yet alar; and ever, in the shadowy distance, gleam the turrets, minarets and towers of an unattainable Beyond

In the fairy-land of childhood things seem to be as they are not; in the dream and finally comes appetite with its fiery land of more mature years things are not as they seem to be. The Topography of the Brain.

Abundant proof has been adduced the fact that the brain may be handled irritated or partially destroyed without necessary damage to life. One of the latest developments of this method of investigation has been the dis-resist the beginning of evil will find covery of those centers in the cortex themselves powerless to war against it which preside over voluntary motion, when it is completely developed and which have been, more especially by fully grown. Prof. Ferrier, differentiated and localized with great precision. This important knowledge has been arrived at by an extended series of experiments conducted on living animals, and guarded tenderly by its elders, was in which, by observing the several effects | driving by the orphans' home the other or destroying limited areas of their brains day, when it caught the sound of the the functions of these special localities have been determined. A topography the children were at play. It eagerly of the cerebrum has thus been constructed, in which the various faculties have

People Buried Alive.

The writer of a paper recently read before the French Academy of Medicine expresses the opinion that one in every mence practicing economy, and make a 5,000 persons is buried alive. The quesmathematical calculation as to how tion has of late been much discussed by soon they can save sufficient out of the medical body just mentioned, and it their resources to redeem their pledges. seems to be settled that none of the ac- ship of its own statue and a little more cepted indications of death, with the single exception of the unmistakable decomposition of the body, are to be regarded as perfectly conclusive. It is certain that the possibility of such a trightful death weighs on the mind of many of the French, as, according to recent declaration of the President of the difference in the consumption of coal the Chamber of Notaries, express in- between running a train very rapidly structions are given in one will out of every ten to have the testator's heart pierced by a qualified surgeon before the delphia, present the most pertinent and coffin is screwed down.

Ink For Love Letters.

To make gold ink, grind gold leaf with white honey in a slab of porphyry of glass, with a muller, until it is reduced to an impalpable powder in a pasty con-dition; this golden honey paste is then diffused in water, which dissolves the honey, and the gold falls to the bottom in the form of a very fine powder. When the honey is all washed away mix the gold powder with gum arabic mucilage. After using it, allow it to dry on the paper, and then it may be made brilliant by burnishing it with an agate burn-

A Proof of Immortality.

An Unfair Advantage.

[Texas Siftings.]

Lady, to hackman-"How much

"Fifty cents, you mean, stingy

you say I have to pay?"

"What's your number?"

"One dollar."

great lovers of tobacco. Let any [Mary A. Livermore.] smoke a pipe or cigar in the camels com-The fact that we do not amount to pany and the camel will follow the much in this life, unless we are sadly smoker about, place his nose close to the disciplined, is in itself sterling proof of burning tobacco, inhale the fumes with immortality. It is only as we are chiseled by sorrow and polished by disappoint | then throwing his head up, with mouth agape and eyes upturned, showing the ment, that our best qualities come out. bloodshot whites, will grunt a sigh of ecstasy that would make the fortune of a strengthen the character more than praise low comedian in a love scene. and success. Life is too hard, too sterile

Wanted Change of Vocation. [New York Journal.]

"So you are troubled with drowsiness? said a physician to a policeman. "Yis, sorr; that's fwat's the matte

"Well, then, I would advise you get a position on a live morning paper. them in mock anger. It's a sure cure for somnolency."

HIGH SEE.

A Queen City girl, eating souce, Caught a glimpse of a beautiful mouse, When the note that she reached As she stood up and screeched Would have drawn a $1,000 house.

-[Boston Folio. Queen Victoria's Economy.

[Utica Observer.] "Candle ends" economy is now literalpracticed in the household of the British Queen, and it is accomplished through the ingeunity of her head servthem from the inclemency of the

> He recently invented a machine which cuts down the candle after guests have used it, so as to leave a fresh wick; the scrapings are collected, returned to the candle factory, made into candles and sold again to the Queen at reduced rates. Victoria saves quite a little pin-money by this thriftiness, and the master of the household rejoices over the possession of the massive brain that gave birth to this money, saving invention.

Same Old Fool Joke. (Providence Journal.)

A young lady of Olneyville had bee sitting in a chair and rose to get some thing, and as she attempted to regain her seat a young friend quickly withdrew the the floor. The next day she was taken ill, and a physician was summoned, and for two The fissures are old lava channels pro- months he has been applying bandages, plasters, etc., to save the young lady, who duced by the outside of the mass cooling and forming a tube, which, when the is 18 years of age, from permanent curva-chair and allowed her to sink heavily to fiery stream was exhausted, has been left | ture of the spine. As it was, her body became bent, and gave her friends great alarm. It will be five years before all danger of spinal disease will be removed.

The Hub of the Southern Hemisphere.

these rivers appears gushing from a cleft high up in basaltic walls, where it leaps [Cor. Cincinnati Enquirer.] a cataract into the torrent below. Where Valparaiso is the South American this stream has its origin, or at what Boston, and the most un-Spanish city on the Pacific. Its streets are kept scrupuunknown, although it is believed that lously clean, and are as safe, though almoust crowded, at midnight as at noon; paupers are unknown; the public spirit of the citizens exuberates in all sorts of benevolent and educational institutions. There are art schools and polytechnic colleges, daily newspapers, Protestant | O willing and graceful concession of these. chapels and halls of the Madre Nature Society, a sort of secular league that ger-Where this is done, even if the manner minated in Bracelona, Spain, but expandbe not all that could be desired, the ed chiefly in the Transatlantic republics. The contrast between Valparaiso and Lima equals that between Edinburgh manner. And where there is a purpose and effort to make others agreeable, the

Prof. Tyndall on Lightning

Prof. Tyndall says it is a foolish thing to go under a tree during an electric storm, unless a person stands some distance from the trunk.

In a particular case he cited the man's clothes were very wet, and though they were very much torn, they formed a sufficiently good conductor for the lightning, and he escaped with his life. Had his raiment been dry he would inevitably have been killed.

Producing the man's boots the lecturer pointed out that the uppers were torn to pieces by the electric fluid in its anxiety to reach the earth; but the sole, into the construction of which iron largely entered in the shape of hobmails, formed a good conductor and was not

What Rolled Gold is.

Rolled-gold jewelry is a fiction. The term was invented for the purpose of giving the public the impression that the goods so sold were solid gold, but that by reason of its being rolled the cost of manufacture was greatly cheapened. This idea caught the public fancy, and the trade soon assumed enormous propor-

As the demand for this kind of jewelry increased the demand for solid gold decreased, and at present there are only a few of the old established houses which deal exclusively in the pure metal. Properly speaking, all gold used by ewelers is rolled into plates or drawn into wire before it is shaped into any particular style of jewelry, and that which is understood by the public generally as rolled gold is known to the trade as rolled

Charles Dickens and Children. [John Hague, in Toronto Mail.]

Reminiscences of men so popular as Wag Dickens are always interesting, especially such as throw light upon character, and most especially when they tend to clear a reputation from ungenerous aspersions some persons still cast upon his memory

Allow me, then, to say, as the topic has been raised in the Mail, that about the year 1851 I was a visitor at the quaint little house just within the gate of Euston place, then occupied by a highly gifted journalist, Mr. G. J. H. Mr. H. had, as sub-tenant and boarder. my genius-gifted, lamented friend, the late Henry Merritt, whose cabin-sized studio I was often in. I may say that we were all three interested in the Leaddefinite date for arriving at a conclu- er, just established, and edited by G. H.

The den of the greatestart judge and critic of this age-Merritt, looked out upon the lawn of the house occupied by the greatest novelist-Dickens. My attention was one day drawn to the window by the screeching merriment of youngsters.

pounds of coal; the slow train ran at 4,420 pounds, being a saving of 1,305 are Dickens' brats larking with him as usual." On the grass I saw Dickens, attired in a loose Turkish patterned dressing gown, gambolling with his children, more like a kitten with other kit-An Englishman with the Nile expeditions than seemed to comport with the tion writes home that the camel's are | dignity of illustrious authorship.

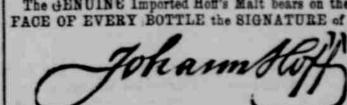

Dickens, however, kept his dignity for fit occasions. The fun seemed to arise from a struggle for the top place, in which Dickens with glorious good nature and with farcical gesticulations, allowed a prolonged sniff, swallow the smoke, the young ones. himself to be ignominiously worsted by

Those who have seen Dickens' unrivalled powers as a comedian will be able to understand the hysterical glee of the children. Aspersions on Dicken's domestic character have since that scene been regarded by me with contempt as mendacious. At Sheffield when he was playing with Collins, Augustus Egg, and others of more or less note, on behalf of a literary charity, Dickens was greatly amused at being told that his frolics on the lawn had been witnessed and told me that Merritt often shook his pipe at

Established in 1847 by JOHANN HOFF, Royal Prussian Counsellor, Knight of the Order to the Crown, owner of the Imperial Austrian Gold Cross of Merit with the Crown, and owner of the Hobenzollern Medal of Merit, Purveyor of almost all Sovereigns of Europe, Inventor and first manufacturer of the Malt Extract and possessor of 58 PRIZE MEDALS from Exhibitions and Scientific Societies.

The dENUINE Imported Hoff's Malt bears on the TONIC AND NUTRITIVE known. The Genuine CONTAINS ONE-THIRD MORE to the bottle than the imitation AND IS SUPERIOR IN QUALITY.

MR. EISNER: DEAR SIR: Having had occasion to give the pre aged trial. I have at last definitely settled on Johann Hoff's Genuine Imported, M. Eisner, sole agent, as being the best and most reliable and meeting the indications in the largest majority of cases. It has always given me entire satisfaction. spectfully yours, ALBERT L. A. TOBOLDT, M. D.

FOR

LOUISVILLE, KY., April 27, 1884. EISNER & MENDELSON : DEAR SIRS: I am using your "Hoff's Malt Extract" in my practice and am pleased with results. Thanks for circulars, etc.

Very respectfully,

J. A. LARRABEE, M. D.

GERMAN HOSPITAL, PHILADELPHIA.
O MORITZ EISNER, Esq., Sole Agent of Johann
Hoff's Malt Extract for the U.S. of A., 320 Race DEAR SIR: Please send one dozen of Johann Hoff's Malt lixtract to the above hospital. I am very much pleased with it and my patients could not do without it. E. RAAB, M. D., Resident Physician of the German Hospital, Philadelphia.

THE To M. EISNER, Esq., Agent for Johann Hoff's Genuine Mult Extract, 320 Race Street, Philadelphia. DHAR SIR: Dr. E. Wilson recommended Johann Hoff's Malt Extract as the best and only kind for our purpose. With kind regards, I am yours truly, CHARLES S, TURNBULL, M. D.

Assistant Professor Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. Mr. M. EISNER: I have used the Johann Hoff's Mait Extract sent me with very good effect.
WILLIAM PEPPER, M. D., Dean of the University of Pennsylvania

GARRISON HOSPITAL, Vienna, Austria. a reputation from ungenerous aspersions such as he had to endure, and such as (Signed) Dr. LOEFF, Chief Physician of H. M. the Emperor's Garr, Hosp. Dr. PORIAS, House Physician, Kletzinsky, and has been found to contain only articles which are of great benefit in cases of imperfect diges-tions and bad nutrition, also affections of the chest, for convalescence and general debility. PROF. DR. GRANICHSTETTER.

I have brought suit against Messrs, TARRANT & CO., for bottling and selling another preparation upon the reputation of my Genuine Malt Extract Merritt, in his solemn manner, with a for which I have received 58 whiff of his stubby pipe, said: "Inose Medals from Exhibitions, Medical Societies, etc., etc.

> BEWARE of IMITATIONS! None genuine without signature o "JOHANN HOFF" and "MORITZ EISNER," on the neck of every bottle.

JOHANN HOFF, Berlin, Germany. Beware of Imitations!

Sole Agent for United States and Canada

Sole Agents for United States,

318 & 320 RACE STREET. PHILADELPHIA, PA. U. S. A.